The First Mannings in History

In Hasted's work (Anglo-Saxon English), page 1 and 2, he makes the following reference to the Mannings:

"They are said to be descended from Manchart and his family who came from Hanau, a town in Saxony, before the year of the Conquest.

Simon de Manning was the earliest representative of the family recorded, and of him there is now general knowledge in England, at Dean, County of Kent. He lived in the time of King Richard I and A.D. 1187-1199, and was the first of the English [illegible] which the King in the 10th year of his reign [illegible]

The above records are quoted from Pages 1 and 2 of the History of William H. Manning.

With this introduction, this lineage will start with the immigrant, William Manning, as the First Generation.

THE MANNING FAMILY

From "THE MANNING FAMILY", by William H. Manning, published by the Salem Press Co., Salem, Massachusetts, in 1902, most of the early records and history of this New England family have been compiled, and the page number references refer to that genealogical book.

The compiler is indebted to Mr. Edward McClure Manning of Palo Alto, Calif., and Mrs. Anna Manning (Whitcomb) Baylor of Santa Barbara, Calif., for the use of their volume and their assistance, as well as to the other family members who have supplied more recent records.

This "Lineage" has been compiled for and dedicated to:

JOHN[12] BROWN MANNING III (See 12th Generation)

the son of Dr. John[11] Brown and Marie Louise (Kaiser) Manning, now living in Santa Barbara.

The Earliest Mannings in History

In Hasted's Kent (Kent County England), published in 1797, occurs the following reference to the Mannings:

"They are said to be descended from an ancient and noble family which took the name from Manning, a town in Saxony, whence they came to England before the Conquest.

Simon de Manning was the earliest representative of the family mentioned by Hasted, and of him there is now general knowledge in England. His home was at Downs, County of Kent. He lived in the time of King Richard I, who reigned A.D. 1189-1199, and was the first of the English barons to take up the cross and go with the King to the Holy Wars in the Second Crusade, when he was knighted."

The above records are quoted from Pages 1 and 2 of "The Manning Family" by William H. Manning.

With this introduction, this lineage will start with the immigrant, WILLIAM[1] MANNING, as the First Generation.

THE MANNING FAMILY

FIRST GENERATION (Page 85)

1-WILLIAM[1] MANNING, The Immigrant. His will was signed "Willyam Maninge". Born about 1592 or earlier, probably in County Essex, near Chelmsford. Died about 1665 (between Feb. 17, 1665, and April 28, 1666, in Boston, Mass. He immigrated to America about 1634, settling near Roxbury, Mass., then the southern boundary town of Boston, but now a part of that city by annexation in 1867. His stay there was for only a few weeks, when he removed to Cambridge, on the opposite side of Boston, where his descendants were long represented. About 1662, his grandson, Samuel Manning removed to Billerica, Mass., where the male line has been continuously ever since. The Manning Manse was built in Billerica in 1696 by Samuel[3] Manning. It has been restored, and in 1954 is being used as a tea room. He was a freeman in 1640, which meant he was a church member and voter. He resided in Boston Aug. 25, 1664, when he became connected with the church there. It was thought he was a merchant in England and he continued this trade in America.

Married first, (name unknown) She died on voyage to America.
Married second, Susannah, who died Oct. 16, 1650, in Cambridge, Mass.
Married third, Elizabeth, in Boston, who survived him.

The name of the mother of his children is unknown and records of only two children have been found, WILLIAM[2] (see 2nd generation), Hannah.

Died March 14, 1690-1. Buried in Old Cemetery of Cambridge.
He came to the Colony of Mass. on or before 1634, settling in Cambridge, where he lived all of his life.
He was a selectman and had the management of the town's business affairs. He was a freeman in 1643 and for fifteen years he was a highway surveyor. He served as executor and administrator of eighteen various estates. In 1670, he, with an associate, was appointed "to chastise the youth" of the town. In 1672, he, with an associate, Deacon John Cooper, was selected to replace the Old Harvard College Building with a new one. This work was completed in 1684. The first buildings were established in 1636 by the General Court, and Cambridge was chosen as the location, and in 1639 it received the name of Harvard College. He left no will. Inventory filed March 30, 1691, in Cambridge.
Married Dorothy, who was born in 1612 and died July 26, 1692. Thought to have been born in England.

THE TE ROLLER FAMILY

There appears to be no genealogical or other records of this family in print. Therefore, during the summer of 1952 Mr. and Mrs. Derk Rae Te Roller, when on a trip to Europe, commissioned a professional genealogist, Mr. Jos. Goudawaard, aged 83, of 38 Heemskerlaan, Baarn, Netherlands, to search out the records.

Much valuable information, including photostatic copies and microfilms, were supplied to Mr. Te Roller, who holds them in his possession for reference and proof.

All family members, as well as the Compiler, are greatly indebted to the following persons and to many other relatives for the material supplied in the preparation of this booklet: Mr. D. Rae Te Roller, of San Francisco, Cal.; Mrs. Anna Te Roller of Holland, Michigan; Mr. Herman Brower of Holland, Michigan; Mr. John H. Bruins of Beirut, Lebanon.

No attempt is made here to publish the complete records, though they are used as a basis of this lineage up to the advent of the founding of the Te Roller Family in Holland, Ottawa County, Michigan, by the Immigrant, Derk J. Te Roller, in about 1847.

This augmented lineage has been compiled for and dedicated to:

JOHN[7] BROWN MANNING III (See 7th Generation)

THE TE ROLLER FAMILY

Below is a copy of Mr. Goudswaard's letter of August 30th, 1952, to Scott L. Boyd, for transmission to D. Rae Te Roller:

"Tuesday afternoon, August 12th, I met at the Amstel Hotel, Amsterdam, your brother-in-law, just arrived from London. I showed him some annotations written in a rough draft. One of these was: meaning "Te Roller" is the name of a farm. Now I have treated upon the neighborhood Rynderen of the village Brummen, where about 1805, the farm Te Roller existed and probably much later. A very old farmer speaking his accent, his dialect, told me his father had spoken of the farm "de Rulder".

A researching in the feudal registers of the principality Gelre and County Zutphen (now parts of the Dutch Province Gelderland, capital Arnhem) showing entries from about 1400 till 1810 (Napoleon domination over Holland) preserved now in the State archives in the Province Gelderland, city Arnhem, learns that the couple, Johan Ruyter and Susanna van Rhemen was owner of feodal estate in the County of Zutphen and would have it as allodial possession. This was allowed on condition other allodial estates belonging to Johan Ruyter was to abandon and changed in feodale goods. The first entry of this acquisition is dated 15 January 1663. Here I found "de Hofsteede 't Roller", (homestead farm). The feodal register says:

Brummen (now splendid village). The estate Denteryck bought with lots and dependent farms the Haesenbergh (Hare Hill) and het Roller in the jurisdiction of Veluwe-zoom (Veluwe border) bailiff-office Brummen neighborhood Brumen and Rynderen, used by the respective bouwluinden (husbandmen-farmers). is by free-making of the estate Ymninck in the County of Zutphen parish Vorden neighborhood Lynden by Johan Ruyter and Susanna van Rhenen, husband and wife, made from free possession to a feodal one and as feodal tenure with Zutphen's rights to "vereergewaden met een pond goed gelt's'. Contracting a loan the la d-lord had to become from the loaner a present, a donation. Here the loaner had to give one pound current money. This present was called Heerengewaad, meaning perhaps for the land-lord's clothes.

On November 14 1677 the farm 't Roller is described again as follows: Teoffee Gerard Casijn van der Hell.

The estate 't Roller with land annexed the seven lots from the Rynderenhoff (that means the principal building in the neighborhood Rynderen) barter away goods for goods situated in Oecken on the Loo, all to gether in Veluwezoom (Veluwborder) in the jurisdiction of Brummen and deceasing 8 July 1678, all leaved behind this Johannes Ruyter at Vierackers jurisdiction of Brummen and Rynderen.

The neighborhood Rynderen is about 5 miles from river IJesselbank, please cross the river and go some five miles to the east and you approach Bronckhorst. In this village had lived before 3 November 1650 a Johan then Roller, having had a lawful daughter Hindertzken, then Roller, who married in the little town Doetinchem (about 10 miles south by east from Bronckhorst) Jan Rensen, son of Remt Rensen, citizen of Doetinchem, being lawful son.

The late John then Roller was born before 1610. Certainly this John ten Roller had worked at the farm te Roller." End of quote.

THE TE ROLLER FAMILY

Extract from letter dated September 12 1952, from Jos. Goudswaard, Professional Genealogist, to Scott L. Boyd:

"Ciphers and numbers in red show ancestors of Mr. Derk Te Roller's son, Without them, he did not exist, they deserve praise! All I give you to read is only truth. The genealogical quarters-roll of his son is only partly to research here in the Netherlands. In behalf of my Dutch, Belgian, French and German commission-givers, I number the quarters (the ancestors) of number 1- perhaps by other manner as the American one."

THE TE ROLLER FAMILY

The word "TE ROLLER", according to the genealogist whose letter precedes this, is the name of a farm, and official registers show entries from about 1400 to 1810 (Napoleon domination over Holland).

The following is quoted from a letter under date of October 27, 1953, of Mr. John H. Bruins, a cousin of D. Rae Te Roller, who is counselor of the American Embassy in Beirut, Lebanon:

"I recall when I was a boy, my Aunt Hannah Te Roller, at one time mentioned that she had heard the origin of the name went back several centuries when the ancestors of our grandfather Te Roller were supposed to have come from the Tirol district, now in Northern Italy.

Up to World War I, this was in Austria, and the language still spoken there is German to a considerable extent. I doubt whether Aunt Hannah had any documentary evidence of this. It is a good many years ago and from the way she spoke, I infer that this information is more or less in the realm of legend." End of quote.

The following is quoted from a letter dated November 18, 1953, received from Mr. Herman Brower, of Holland, Michigan: (He is past 90 years)

"In the year 1847 there was a great immigration from the Netherlands to America and Rev. Van Raalte came with a large part of his congregation and settled in Holland, Michigan. The same year Rev. Seine Bolks came with a large part of his congregation and settled in the woods about twelve miles from Holland and called the place "Overisel", presumably after the name in the Netherlands of the place from which they came.

However a part of his people ran out of funds and remained in New York at Syracuse over the winter and got some work in order to get enough funds to go on and join the others in Overisel in 1848, and among those was our grandfather, Hermanus Boers, who settled on a farm about three miles north of Overisel, with his family, consisting of one son and three daughters: Jan (or John); Marie, who was married and had two children when they settled near Overisel, who was my mother; Jennigje, who afterwards married H. Brinkman; and Hendrika, who afterwards married Derk J. Te Roller and became the grandmother of all the girls of Hein Te Roller and D. Rae Te Roller.

We know very little of the first Derk J. Te Roller, the grandfather of Hein Te Roller's children, except that he was a widower and had two children when he married Hendrika Boers, and was a tailor. We never became acquainted with the children of his first wife as they were on their own and did not become members of the new family.

Derk J. Te Roller was a city man and did not know anything of rural conditions, but he was a fine gentleman and a good tailor.

As to Grandmother Boers, wife of Hermanus Boers, we must admit to our shame and ignorance that we know nothing, and she presumably died in the Netherlands. I remember my Grandfather very well and he often visited our home and walked the whole distance of about 4½ miles, even when past 80 years of age, which was considered a very old age at that time. Why were we so stupid as not to inquire about our Grandmother from our parents while they lived. We did not realize how much we would appreciate the information after they were gone." End of quote.

In 1929, the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Hein Te Roller and Nellie Orcelia Augustin, he published "The Te Roller Migration to America". This booklet has provided much valuable information in preparing this lineage, mostly in the third, fourth and fifth generations. Most of the information in the first and second generations was supplied by the genealogist in the Netherlands.

Mrs. Anna Te Roller, of Holland, Michigan, searched the family bibles, books of records kept by the family, records and markers in the cemetery in Holland, and supplied a great deal of the material used in this booklet as to dates, names and places of the older generations. She is almost ~~90~~ 82 years of age and has been most helpful. She understands that Hendrika (Boers) Te Roller came over in the same ship with the Kollens and that they came to "Province Overisel" in 1851.

The following has been obtained from the markers in the cemetery in Holland, Michigan, by Mrs. Anna Te Roller (widow of Derk John Te Roller) in December 1953.

THE TE ROLLER FAMILY

Derk Te Roller landed in Baltimore, Md. with other Hollanders in 1847, after a voyage of 97 days by sailing ship, and proceeded to St. Louis, Mo. where he remained two years plying his trade as a tailor, obviously headed for the Dutch Colony in Pella, Iowa. He tarried in Galena, Illinois for three years, following his trade as a tailor. It was here his first wife, Elizabeth, and three children died.

However, he soon landed in the Holland Colony of Michigan, where in 1852 he married his second wife, Hendrika Boers, who had arrived the previous year, though her parents were among those coming in 1847.

By 1871 he had built a good home and a two-story building, and was enjoying a good business on the main street, until a disastrous fire destroyed two-thirds of the town, including the entire business section, with his home, store, and contents of both. He re-established himself, and he held many official positions in the community and was greatly respected by all. He was supervisor and elder deacon in the church and was very active in church work.

THE TE ROLLER FAMILY
FOURTH GENERATION

4. HEIN[4] TE ROLLER, Derk[3], Jan[2], Hendrick, Hendrikus[1]
Born Jul 23 1853 in Holland, Mich.
Died Feb 15 1936 in Los Angeles, Cal.

He was educated in the grade schools of Holland, Mich., finishing at the age of sixteen, when he began his first year's apprenticeship in the wood working trade, and at the age of twenty-one, he was in executive positions.

1880, after his marriage, they moved to Chicago, Ill.
1883, moved to Grand Rapids, Mich.
1884, contracting in house building on his own account. He assisted in establishing the furniture manufacturing business in Grand Rapids and planned the construction of the first unit of the Ottawa Furniture Company plant. He also negotiated a deal with the wholesale house in Burlington, Iowa, for the entire year's supply from the new plant.
1889, moved his family to Seattle, Wash, where he worked as foreman and superintendent on many of the large buildings then being built.
1895-96, served with the Great Northern Railway in settling a colony of Hollanders on Whidby Island.
1897, joined the "Klondike Rush" and went with a group into Dawson, Yukon Territory. He took passage on S.S. Alki, about Sep 17 1897. He joined forces with others, including his brother-in-law, W.D. Brewster, in making the trail and journey down the Yukon from Lake Bennett to Dawson. They were on the White Pass Trail for nearly a month, packing and carrying their supplies from cache to cache, arriving in Dawson October 20 1897, a seventy-four day trip, after leaving Seattle.

They built their log cabin on the Bonanza trail, where Te Roller became prominent in river transportation, commercial and civic activities. During his six year residence there, he was manager for the S.Y.T. Co. and later for the N.A.T.& T.Co.He was President of the Dawson Transfer & Storage Co. and the Hadley Stage Lines.
During the McKinley administration, he was appointed Vice Consul by Secretary Hay. He did not actively engage in mining, though he held some interests with others.
1901, Mrs. Te Roller, with the three youngest children, joined him in Dawson. The three older children were then at the Moody School in Northfield, Mass.
1903, they returned to Seattle, where Te Roller formed a partnership in the building material business with E.H. Camp, which carried on for thirteen years, when World War I forced them to dissolve. After the Armistice, he continued his business career in the building specialties.

He was a member of the Pilgrim Congregational Church in Seattle for 40 yrs.
(The above record taken from the anniversary booklet of Hein Te Roller, published in 1929.)

He married Dec 24 1879, Nellie Orcelia Augustin, in Holland, Mich.
